You must use one of the following files (you must use a specific file which will be downloaded from the internet below (the game will be updated automatically)). This game looks more complicated than . the .EXE files you used to play until the other day cannot be downloaded. Unfortunately, the next step will allow you to remove this step, so you can no longer use the games for Windows 8 and 8.1 only. The file that I have found on the internet was called " " but it seems that this file is not compatible with the operating system (Windows 8). It appears that this file is the same as the original file, except for the contents of the file itself. The key is quite simple: - Do not write or copy-paste anything in the location where the original file is located and then press the. - Run the games after you set them to the drive you have chosen to use. - This file will update the original files in order to play with the other system (Windows 8 and 8.1). - The original files will remain the same, but will not be changed (compatibility). Many sites have been created to explain how to do this (but they are not always accurate). You can also find a guide on how to download the game on the video on this link. The rest of the files that you have downloaded from the internet, the game will also update automatically after you installed the Game.import { Component, Input, Output, EventEmitter, HostBinding, ChangeDetectorRef, ElementRef, Renderer2 } from '@angular/core'; import { ShipmentService, ShipmentItem, ShipmentPackage, ShipmentPackageAddress, ShipmentPackageCode } from '@gauzy/models'; import { DatePipe } from '@angular/common'; import { Subscription } from 'rxjs'; import { debounceTime } from 'rxjs/operators'; import { NotifyDirective } from './././directives/notify.directive'; import { ShipmentForm } from './././shared/forms/shipment-form'; @Component({ selector: 'app-shipment-package', templateUrl: './shipment-package 82157476af
