You can also make your own stream: `require 'socket' require 'cgi' s = TCPSocket.open("www.somesite.com") @data = s.gets @data.each_line do |line| line = line.chomp if line =~ /dossamiku encik/ puts line end s.close` A: You could try using a regular expression to find the words you're interested in. Then you could pull out the information you're interested in from the search results. It would look something like this: `irb> s = TCPSocket.open('www.somesite.com') => # irb> @s = s.gets => "GET /encik.php HTTP/1.0\r\n " irb> @data = @s.split(/GET\s*(HTTP/1.0)\r\n /) => ["GET /encik.php HTTP/1.0\r\n "] irb> @data.each do |l| => ["/encik.php HTTP/1.0\r\n "] irb> d = d.split(/ HTTP/1.0\r\n => ["/encik.php ", "HTTP/1.0\r\n irb> d[1].chomp => "/encik.php " Also, the C# sample I've linked to should show you some other options for making this work. Differential regulation of the skeletal muscle cell-specific homeobox gene, Msx1, by calcium and protein kinase C. The homeobox gene Msx1 is expressed in an adult-specific manner in differentiating skeletal muscle. As reported previously, the role of Msx1 in skeletal muscle development is quite subtle. Here, we show that Msx1 is differentially regulated in rat skeletal muscle cells in culture. Msx1 is strongly induced by 82157476af`
